Tarot cards meaning the sun

DescriptionA child happily stretches his arms. He sits on a white horse that symbolizes purity and freedom of mind. Next to the child stands a red-orange banner that stands prince, vitality and health. Behind the child there is a garden wall and a field with sunflowers. The child's head is also adorned with a sunflower crown. Sunflowers traditionally symbolize happiness and hope. The sun itself shines over the scene. The sun is a symbol of enlightenment, happiness, hope and positivity. The sun is the twentieth map of Major Arcana. It symbolizes innocence, joy, success, security, vitality and happiness. Upright meanings for the Sun Tarot CardThe Sun is one of the most positive cards in the Tarot. If you are looking for a clear YES, that is it! It stands for happiness and joy. Pay close attention to where this map appears in your reading. This will show you a path of happiness and fulfillment. After a rough patch, this is a positive indicator of better times to come. It is a reminder not to give up hope. The Sun card can also speak with inner child work. This card can appear in a reading to remind you of things that brought you joy when you were younger. It can be a call to participate in fun activities such as games, dancing and creative activities. As we get older, we forget these simple pleasures that are reassuring and rejuvenating. Grab these pencils and adult coloring books! Or maybe you're more of the paintball type? Either way, embrace fun! The Sun card can also represent security and trust. The child on the card is natural — and has no embarrassment or fear about it! You feel safe and secure in your relationships or where you are in life. Feel safe in your choices because you make it great! This is a good indicator map for mental and physical health. It is a card of strength, vitality and the feeling of being younger again. It represents a recovery from setbacks. Spiritually, the sun stands for enlightenment. It is a beautiful map to appear in readings that refer to explorations of their personal spirituality. Pay attention to major breakthroughs and realizations. Love and RelationshipsThis is a map of playful, funny relationships. It can represent a new love that is rejuvenated and positive. For established relationships, it suggests a period of happiness. When it appears in a relationship conflict reading, this map often means that there is no conflict. Sometimes we read too much in events. Rethinking can turn them into fear-inducing scenarios. This is especially true if you have had an abusive relationship in the past. The sun map reminds us that this trauma in the past - you're safe now. Don't be afraid to have fun now. Very rarely, when the sun appears as a negative influence in a reading, it can indicate too much fun in a relationship. If a new relationship affects your personal, professional, or financial responsibilities, it's a warning to get back on track before you're completely derailed. If looking for a new relationship, that's a great success story! A new, funny relationship is just around the corner. Friendships represented by this card are positive, fun and fulfilling. Career and workThe Sun is a great card to appear in a career reading. Its bright energy brings lightness to everything it touches. You will find success and success in your current work and projects. This card may also indicate fame and professional recognition. Others will notice your posts. This is your time to shine! All your hard work and effort has paid off. It is also a wonderful card for abundance and security. It can indicate a time when your hustle and bustle pays off in comfort and abundance. It can also mean finally getting into a groove at work. You are now right to trust in your abilities. The Sun card would be an unusual card to appear in a reading for workplace conflicts. It's such an overwhelmingly positive card that it's hard to dampen his mind. In an upright position, this could indicate a lack of problems. Otherwise, it might indicate some naivety in relation to your job. Maybe it's too much fun in the workplace? It is important to maintain morale and not to have your nose on the grind stone all the time. But jobs where productivity is low and too much lost will not be sustainable. This would be a good opportunity to draw clarifying cards for a clearer answer. As a potential work or career, the sun prefers to work with children and animals (especially horses, of course). It can suggest coaches (especially those who focus on positivity mindset) and athletes. Works where you walk alone or in the spotlight are worth exploring. People and personalities Individuals represented by the sun map are self-confident, confident and positive. These are usually extroverted and human-persons. You can be a lot of fun around. The sun map represents the metaphysical element of fire. The Sun Reversed Tarot Card Meaningreversed Keywords: Pessimism – Rigidness – BurnoutReversed Meanings for the Sun Tarot CardWith the Sun card, the potential for its bright, positive energy is always there. But if reversed, this brightness is reduced. The reverse sun card often signals a dampening of its natural positivity. At worst, it can be a veritable pessimism. But often it is a situation or new information that has displaced a good time. Party over. One of the good things about this map, conversely, is that the sun will not be wiped out forever and Times will return. Sometimes the sun points to a misguided pursuit of happiness. This can take the form of searching for fulfillment in the wrong relationships or jobs. Or finding happiness by buying material things. Although we are more likely to think that decluttering and minimalism will make us happier these days, this is not always the case. It sounds clichéd, but happiness is an inside job. The Sun card reversed us from it. Don't put your happiness in the hands of others or things. The sun map can also be a gentle reminder to brighten up. Don't be so rigid in your outlook, schedule or habits. Allow some spontaneity in your life. Everything won't fall apart if you relax a little. Find your joy again. Reverse Love and RelationshipsThe inverted sun can be a single disillusionment in romantic relationships or friendships. This may indicate a time when patience and goodwill have worn out thinly. It may also indicate that you do not feel supported in the relationship. This is a difficult problem that can be solved as it could be due to a misunderstanding or a real lack of support. Find out if clarifying your requirements improves the relationship. Sometimes you have to tell people what you need. On the other hand, if you experience a real sabotage of someone else, you do not tolerate it. Reversed Career and WorkThe reverse Sun card can represent a bump on the road in a career reading. There are often jobs or jobs that are not quite right for you. On paper, it may have looked good – but when you got there, it fell short of your expectations. The inverted sun can represent burnout. You need a break. If you can't take time out, make sure your life is as stress-free as possible outside of work. Sometimes life temporarily gives us a double shame of a hard job and a difficult domestic life. Even then, you need to find time to destress and take care of yourself. Find activities or hobbies to take your head around. Your happiness and well-being are always your responsibility to cultivate. No one can do that for you. They are worth taking care of. Conversely, this card may appear reversed if the novelty of a job causes stress. As they say, you don't know what you don't know – and sometimes that can get us in trouble. You may need additional training or a mentor to give you more insight into your work. Reverse individuals and personalities Individuals who are reversed by the sun map may tend to be pessimism. It can represent an excess of the positive energy of this map, indicating immaturity or childishness. Both things are fixed by taking responsibility for where you are. Work to cultivate a better mindset. There are others who would love the resources available to you. Sometimes we need to take a broader look at our lives to see how good we are. CorrespondencesAstrology: SunElement: FireNumerology: 20, 1 (see Magician) 10 (see Wheel of Fortune)AffirmationI create a life of happiness and joy. Some of my favorite examples of the Sun CardCirco TarotThe figure in circo tarot keeps the sun while enjoying a day on the beach – or maybe she gets a pool side tan? I love the playful reinterpretation that Marisa de la Pea used for this map. While they laze leisurely, one could also argue that she stands triumphantly while holding the sun as her price. I also like to think Comfort in a bikini is reminiscent of the themes of safety and trust in the Sun card! The whole menu is bright, cheerful and warm. Our TarotThe Our Tarot Deck features Sister Rosetta Tharpe as A Local Sun card. The bright colors attracted me, and I have to admit, I didn't know who Tharpe was – which is a pity because it inspired early rock and blues musicians. Your shot as a sun touches the confidence, joy and spotlight that this card can bring. Tharpe's career began in the 1930s as a gospel singer, but soon she brought her unique style to nightclubs. Her groundbreaking use of distortions with an electric guitar was almost outrageous at the time. Instead of getting involved in the crowd, Tharpe transformed modern rock'n'roll forever. The sun can be a reminder to stay true to yourself and your gifts. What you have to offer this world is important. Light Grey TarotThe light grey tarot is a collaborative deck from Light Grey Labs. On her sun map we see the well-known motifs of sunflowers, a child wearing a flower crown, and a white horse (reinvented as a hobby horse toy). Her figure darkens the sun, but she still shines brightly behind her. For me, this card captures the imaginative play and innocence of childhood. The sunflowers dwarf them so that they can explore their shady rows as if they were secret passages. It reminds me how magical these tiny, worldly spaces could become with a little imagination. I think the sun map often challenges us to live our lives with more wonder. The sun is one of my favorite cards from the classic Aquarius Tarot. I love the 70s inspired art deco style. This deck was one of the first I really started to learn Tarot. It has a special place in my heart! The sun here stands out as a happier map in an otherwise airy, wintry deck. Dreaming Way TarotThe sun map of Dreaming Way Tarot shows a very young child crawling out of a pile of sunflowers. There's a charmingly oversized lollipop (when last time do you have one?) next to you. Illustrator Kwon Shina captures the child with a sweet smile. He enjoys his day. We don't see what the child sees, which led to his rosy-cheeked grin. But the child pointing to the edge of the image, and the diagonal design of the image, suggests movement. The child seems to be thinking about crawling to someone or something else. Like the child, we should all follow our own joy. Starchild TarotThe sun map of Starchild Tarot is interesting to me. The alien landscape is digitally collated from desert mountains. There is a huge sun above it that dwarfs the landscape. In contrast to the typical to positive or cheerful sun cards, this feels decided To. It makes sense — the sun can be an arrogant and overwhelming force. Ask anyone who lives in a desert! The enlightening light of the sun can reveal more than we intended. This sun has layers and rings around it. It points to the chaotic process that and enlightenment.
